NEW YORK FASHIONS.

Dotted Creposs-"Blazer", and "Eton" Suits-Yachilag Dresses-Shade Rats.

New York, May 31.—Fashion's neverending exactions regarding novelties, has brought about the introduction of plain colored grepons and cashmere serges, ornamented with silken dots or very minute rosebuds, either in delicate very minute rosebuds, either in delicate contrasts or shadings of one color. Pronounced colors and also tasteful blendings in Bayaders stripes have so pleased popular fancy, that the demand has exceeded the supply. For ordinary street or morning wear, "blazer suits" of navy blue sorge or fannel are avternely blue sorge or fannel are avternely ceeded the supply. For ordinary street or morning wear, "blazer suits" of navy blue serge or flannel, are extremely fashionable, and not more so however than "Eton suits," which are the very latest style. All costumes that have skirt and bodice on in one, with a silk waist and jacket or, detached skirt with Swiss belt or wide belt pointed at the upper edge and silk waist come under the head of "blazer suits." The jacket is discarded when the weather will permit, in order to show the stylish changeable taffeta or striped silk waist. Suspender dresses are quite similar, but the straps passing over, the shoulders, are their peculiar feature, and within a very recent date, the increasing popularity of pointed suspender belts with metal buckles on the straps is noticeable.

THE ETON JACKET admits of several varieties; all short, scarcely reaching the waist line, and worn over a silk. linen or cambric underwaist. One style is cut in a point at the back, but minus seams, square corners at the front, shawl collar faced with a color, or any other trimming, and Roman sash tied at the side. A second variety has a similar front, but opens at the back, showing a shirred silk waist, with sash tied at the back. A third is holf tight, closed at the front with plaited silk frill. Another jacket of which Bedford cord, has square corners and buttons once, about half way down the front, over a pink silk blouse with white lack yoke. Jacket sleeves are of medium fulness, cuffs or trimmings being optional. Wide more sashes, or those in Roman colors, are a great addition to jackets just described, still, they are not obligatory, and leather or velvet belts are acceptable substitutes. The Watteau bow has thrown sashes somewhat into the shade, except for the purpose just mentioned and sets of four, are shown. worn over a silk, linen or cambric unthe shade, except for the purpose just mentioned, and sets of four, are shown, one for the back, two shoulder bows and a smaller one for the hair.

LIGHT WEIGHT TRAVELING CLOAKS are so charming that the costumes becomes of secondary importance, all fashionable styles, however, are long, covering the entire figure. "Gloria" is this season's favorite material, in rich, changeable hues, or in gray, and heing silk and wool combination its lustre equals that of heavy silk. The "Lady Jane" shape is graceful and popular; the ulster reappears shirred at waist, neck and sleeves; or else a care extends. neck and sleeves; or else a cape extends below the waist, in which case shirring is unnecessary. Traveling costumes or summer outfits are not complete with out a handsome, durable umbrella, and those of colored silk, recently intro-duced, in navy, royal blue, brown, car-dinal or garnet, are peculiarly attractive, a combination of para-sol and umbrella. Lance wood sol and umbrella. Lance wood being used for shanks, they roll into very small compass, and fancy light wood handles with cord and tassels are a stylish finish. The variety in handles is very great, but the tendency to repro-duce expensive ones in cheap material, has brought about the existing partiality for natural or carved wood. The newest handles are knobs of Dresden or newest handles are knobs of Dresden or Vienna china, intermixed with gilt, but they are by no means so convenient, as those of light wood. A fine quality black silk umbrella is an elegant accessory and survives all caprices of fashion; such as the "Columbian," "Tacoma," "Edgington," "Harvard," "Yakima," or such as the "Columbian," "Tacoma, "Edgington," "Harvard," "Yakima," or "Coronet," the finest grades of silk umbrellas in the market. THE MOST STYLISH

Tennis or yachting dresses are of white Tennis or yachting dresses are of white crepon or serge, tailor made, with long, buttoned-up "blazer" jacket having three "patch pockets." As white materials are expensive because easily soiled, navy blue or crimson serge costumes are also shown; they lack, however, the distingue appearance of the white suit. The Russian bloase is once more utilized in these styles, and few plain materials have so far escaped its encroachments. encroachments.

SHADE HATS

are broad-brimmed leghorn, lace straw, 'rough and ready," or fancy chip flats, generally with low crowns, but some times in "directoire" shape, trimmed with moire ribbon, huge crimson roses six or seven inches in diameter, ostrich with moire ribbon, huge crimson roses six or seven inches in diameter, ostrich tips, white lace, loops of twisted stems, Rhine stone buckles, clusters of very small flowers, or wide, colored velvet loops arranged in flat bows. Brims are curved to suit the wearer's features, and trimming may be at one side, high in the center, or in Alsatian style. Leghorn hats with two mammoth crimson roses, one placed rather high on the crown, the other toward the front, with leaves and buds falling carelessly over the center, and dark green velvet bow at the back, are very striking, varying in price from $18 upwards. Streamers are not used on shade hats, a bunch of field flowers or velvet bow being more fashlonable. Although the most elegant hats are white, still, black is by no means ignored, and a very stylish black chip is trimmed with a high cluster of white orchids, moire ribbon loops and Rhine stone ornament.

Paying a Sick Call.

It was growing dusk, says the Detroit Tribune. His wife had just returned, and, with bonnet still poised daintly upon her flaxen curls, sat by the fireplace and thoughtfully removed her gloves. Her look was one of placid satisfaction. These was no suggestion in her soft, blue eyes of conflicting emotions or carking care.

When her chubby hands had been released she slowly proceeded to divest herself of her wraps. "Edward," she softly remarked, "I have been to call on our sick neighbor. I heard she was confined to her bed and I ran right

Edward showed by his fond smile that he considered his wife a perfect angel of mercy to hasten thus promptly to the couch of the sufferer.

"Is she very bad?" he inquired with an air of deep sympathy. His wife jerked the pin from her hat.

"I don't know," she rejoined.
"Did she look bad?"
His wife contorted herself until she could reach her back hair, which she proceeded to adjust. "I didn't notice."
"Was she very weak?"

"Was she very weak?"

"Was she very weak?"

His wife rolled her gloves into a littie bail. "I couldn't tell."

"What did she say?"

His wife pulled herself from her new spring coat with a visible effort. "I don't remember."

MONTEZUMA, IOWA, May 31.-When Mr. Charles Block opened the grave of his wife in Hazlewood cemetery near has whe in Harsewood cemetry hear here, he found the coffin full of water and his wife's remains petrified to solid stone. It took five men to lift the coffin out of the grave. The woman's flosh was fair and her hair black and glossy as in life. A bunch of roses in her hand had become solid stone. The body had been buried eight years.

Boils, carbuncles and eruptions of all kinds are nature's efforts to throw off poison from the blood. This result may be accomplished much more effectually, as well as agreeably, through the proper excretory channels, by the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

The stock market to-day was less interesting than that of yesterday, and the transactions of significance were narrowed down to three or four stocks, the rest of the list presenting the usual dull and listless appearance, their fluctuations being confined within extremely narrow limits. No change in the general situation seems likely to be made until the crops are well forward. Burlington in the ferencon and Lotiville' & Nashville later in the day, were subjected to some pressure, but with $1. Paul and Eric they were held within comparatively narrow limits. The industrials continued to be the strong features of the market, but in none of these even was the range of prices of importance. The bears concentrated their efforts at first on Reading, but later Northern Paclife preferred was taken in hand and Louisville & Nashville followed. The declines in these stocks, however, failed to dislodge stocks in the general list, and quotations went down and more stubborn resistance was met, which completed the operators for lower figures to turn their attention to fresh fields. Prices became heavy under the continued pressure and generally returned to a shade below the opening. The close was been due to the state of the state o
